

Annual Physician Recruitment

Every year at Montrose Memorial Hospital, the medical staff, administration and the Board of Trustees get together and talk about what kind of physicians we would like to have in Montrose. We gather information about how long it takes to get an appointment with a physician, how many people are leaving town to get medical care, which current physicians are retiring, and if we have enough need in our community to support a certain kind of specialist. It is detail and fact-oriented and a great deal of time and energy is put into this process.

Montrose Memorial has been very successful with our physician recruitment program. We have an incredibly comprehensive medical staff based on the size of our hospital and community. It also helps that we live in a very desirable area where people want to live and enjoy our surroundings and lifestyle. In the past year, we have helped recruit 14 new physicians to join our medical staff. These physicians are NOT employees of the hospital; however, we review their credentials and grant them privileges to provide patient care at our hospital based on their qualifications and expertise. As you have noticed in the past few months, there have been many “Welcome new physician” ads in the newspaper. Below is a list of the newest members of our medical staff:

- Christina Ahmadian, MD Emergency Medicine
- Paul Becker, MD Cardiology
- C. Kelly Bynum, MD Orthopaedic Surgery
- Julie DeVita-Bailey, DO Family Medicine
- James Felberg, MD Family Medicine
